NCVC Values

Sport can be a powerful instrument in the growth and development of individuals. In order to aid each of our athletes in the realization of this untapped potential, NCVC must live by and promote a set of fundamental ethical beliefs and principles which govern the way the organization and its members conduct themselves both on and off the court.

These beliefs and principles are as follows:

- That our volleyball programs should be athlete-centered;
  - That our volleyball programs should be both fun and an agent for personal and social growth;
  - That our volleyball programs should promote the spirit of fairness, integrity, opportunity and trust;
  - Every member should have the opportunity to achieve his/her maximal potential, developmentally and/or competitively, in the pursuit of excellence;
  - All participants should have access to a quality experience that encourages their lifetime participation in volleyball;
  - Those who participate in our volleyball programs have a responsibility to teach and apply their values;
  - Our organization should operate in a professional manner and be run for and by its members in a democratic, open and transparent manner;
  - Free and open communication and a respect for the views, roles and contributions of every member.
